

Gallery: Cabell Midland vs. Woodrow Wilson, football

From Mike Webb on 10/1/2012:

Cabell Midland (the player facing) jerseys are a light grey. Therefore they are legal since they are not white.

When we first wrote the new jersey rule back in 2007 we said the home team had to wear dark jerseys.

The Editorial Committee wrote the home jerseys must be other than white.

Now, grey other than white?

It appears to me that officials would be within their rights to require the home team to change to darker jerseys or let the light grey go as legal.

The rule is not really that clear and needs edited. We will address it in January.

Thanks,

Mike